The shareholders of PG&E Corporation (“PG&E” or the “Company”)

Dear shareholders:

Like you, funds that we manage own shares of the Company. We write to inform you of our intention to nominate a full slate of new directors (the “New Slate”) to replace PG&E’s current Board of Directors (the “Current Board”).

We expect to announce the New Slate no later than February 21, 2019. As a reminder, a board election will be held in connection with the Annual Meeting of shareholders, which is expected to be held on May 21, 2019. We urge you to exercise your rights and duties as owners and participate in that election. It is time for shareholders to step up.

The Current Board has not only failed the Company and its shareholders; it has failed its customers; it has failed its employees; and, it has failed the people of California. The Company has lost the public’s trust, and it has severely damaged its relationship with regulators and elected officials.

A publicly regulated utility needs a strong working partnership with the public sector. In order to rebuild essential relationships and restore trust, the Company needs an entirely new board. Public officials are pleading for a change at the top. State Senator Jerry Hill called for “a shareholder revolt that forces a change in leadership on the [Company’s] board.”¹ Michael Picker, the president of the California Public Utilities Commission (“CPUC”), highlighted the Current Board’s lack of accountability and declared the Current Board an impediment to change.² State Senator Bill Dodd has demanded “systemic change,” including the board and an end to the status quo. He said the Company has to “clean house.”³

Reactions from the public sector are not surprising. Shareholders should listen. On the Current Board’s watch, Northern California has been ravaged by wildfires; victims have endured unimaginable loss. Half of the Current Board presided during the San Bruno pipeline explosion, for which the Company was found criminally liable. Recently, the Company has been accused of falsifying tens of thousands of safety records.⁴ The Current Board is accountable for these failures. It is well past time for a change.

We plan to nominate a New Slate that will provide appropriate oversight and ensure the Company has a strong and experienced management team, a strategy to address its challenges, and an effective implementation plan. We expect the New Slate would insist the Company work collaboratively with the state of California and its citizens to transform the Company.

The Current Board has chosen to do just the opposite. As you are undoubtedly aware, the Current Board announced their intention to file a voluntary, costly, and unnecessary bankruptcy, which, in our view, violates their fiduciary duties to the Company and to you.

The CPUC has warned that a PG&E bankruptcy will have adverse consequences to the public. Senator Dodd has said that bankruptcy is “not good for victims and not good for ratepayers.”⁵ Advocates for wildfire victims rightly worry that bankruptcy will delay and impair restitution.⁶ Consumer advocates worry about “chaos” and keeping the lights on.⁷

In two letters to the Current Board, we have explained that a bankruptcy is entirely avoidable.⁸ The Company is solvent and has ample liquidity. Yesterday, even a former CPUC commissioner bluntly noted that the Company has other viable options.⁹

The Current Board has been unwilling to pursue other options. Instead of rolling up their sleeves and getting to work, Current Board members are poised to concede defeat and pass the buck to a bankruptcy judge. There is no imminent financial crisis – there is a leadership crisis.

Regulators and elected officials are rightfully furious at PG&E's directors and executives and understandably do not want to reward failure. At the same time, regulators and elected officials want “healthy” utilities.¹⁰ The message is clear; the issue is the leadership, not the balance sheet. When sound governance is restored, and structural issues addressed, the Company will resolve its financial issues.

A New Slate will bring a fresh perspective and consider all options. We will nominate new directors with diverse backgrounds and experience, with an appreciation for the commitment needed to fix PG&E, and with the ability and determination to make lasting change.

With a fresh perspective and renewed determination, a new board will have an opportunity to replenish goodwill with all customers and regulators and begin the transformation to a safer utility. Californians deserve a say in PG&E's future, and a new board should work side-by-side with Governor Newsom, the legislature, and the CPUC to find solutions that work. These solutions could include:

- selecting new officers and executives who have a demonstrated ability to build an organizational safety culture from the top down;
- evaluating strategic alternatives, including asset sales, partnerships, spinoffs, service territory divisions, and even a fair-value municipalization of parts of the company;
- evaluating ways to keep rates down, such as restoring investment grade ratings, settling cases for cost recovery and rates of return, or utilizing securitization for stranded costs;
- cooperating with the federal court overseeing the probation to fulfill the conditions of probation and ensure that “only safe operation” is allowed;¹¹
- evaluating a range of technologies, including underground lines, insulated wires, upgraded reclosers, and hardened poles; and,
- working to minimize the customer harm created by public safety power shutoffs, such as by providing backup generators or battery storage to the most vulnerable customers.

Unfortunately, we expect that the Current Board will continue their indifferent approach to governance and file for bankruptcy. But bankruptcy cannot be used as a sword, nor as a tool of entrenchment. Shareholders retain their corporate governance rights in bankruptcy, including the ability to replace directors and call special meetings.¹² We will persist in our campaign to bring accountability, even if the Current Board follows through on its ill-advised plan to file for bankruptcy.

We believe that the damage caused by the Company's plans to file for a multi-year bankruptcy can be mitigated if shareholders demand accountability and replace the Current Board. After the Annual Meeting, a new board would have a mandate to undertake a reasonable solvency analysis with disinterested advisors. A new board would also have the ability to investigate the decisions that led to the Company's value-destroying bankruptcy announcement and take appropriate action.

If a new board agreed with the overwhelming evidence that PG&E is solvent, it could exit bankruptcy on an expedited basis without impairing creditors. As we discussed in our letter to the Current Board, dated January 17, 2019, there is abundant evidence that PG&E is solvent.¹³ We noted that 18 Wall Street analysts and three credit ratings agencies found PG&E solvent, with a consensus equity valuation of $20 billion as of December 31, 2018. Since then, there has been no material change to the value of the Company's assets or liabilities. The only changes have been the Current Board's announcement of its intention to file for bankruptcy. With proper corporate governance and appropriate resolution of liabilities in the ordinary course, we believe that PG&E common stock could be worth in excess of $50 per share.

Thank you for your consideration. We hope you will follow our efforts as we announce our nominees. If shareholders elect the board that all stakeholders deserve, then the Company can achieve an outcome that enhances safety, improves customer service, and restores investor confidence in PG&E.

Sincerely,

BlueMountain Capital Management, LLC
